

Contents

How to use this book	xiv	Exercises	27
Preface	xvi	Key terms	27
		Notes	27
Part 1 Introduction	1	2 Market segmentation: segmenting, targeting and positioning for diverse consumer markets	28
1 The foundations of consumer behaviour	2	What is market segmentation and why is it important?	30
What is consumer behaviour?	4	Who uses market segmentation?	31
Personal consumers and organisational consumers	4	How market segmentation operates	33
Buyers, payers and users (consumers)	5	Criteria for effective targeting of market segments	36
Why marketers study consumer behaviour	6	Identification	36
Changing product life cycles	7	Sufficiency	36
Changing environmental views and concerns	7	Stability	36
Changing consumer protection and public policy	8	Accessibility	36
Growing role of services marketing	9	Congruent with the company's objectives and resources	37
Growing role of not-for-profit and social marketing	9	Bases for segmentation	37
Growing role of global marketing	9	Consumer-rooted segmentation criteria	38
Changing technology	10	Geographic segmentation	39
Impact of constant change	13	Demographic segmentation	40
The application of consumer behaviour principles to marketing management	14	Psychological segmentation	49
Development of the marketing concept	14	Psychographic segmentation	49
The societal marketing concept	16	Sociocultural segmentation	51
Embracing the marketing concept	17	User-related segmentation	53
Consumer research	17	User-situation segmentation	55
Customer value, satisfaction, trust and retention	19	Benefit segmentation	56
A simplified model of consumer decision making	24	Hybrid segmentation approaches	56
The structure and plan of this book	25	Implementing segmentation strategies	63
Summary	26	Behavioural targeting	63
Discussion questions	26	Microtargeting	63
		Concentrated versus differentiated marketing	64
		Countersegmentation	65

Summary	65
Discussion questions	66
Exercises	66
Key terms	67
Notes	67

Part 2 The consumer as an individual 71

3 Consumer needs and motivation 72

What is motivation? 74

Needs 74

Goals 75

The selection of goals 78

Interdependence of needs and goals 80

Positive and negative motivation 80

Rational versus emotional motives 82

The dynamic nature of motivation 83

Needs are never fully satisfied 83

New needs emerge as old needs are satisfied 83

Success and failure influence goals 84

Substitute goals 85

Frustration 85

Defence mechanisms 85

Multiplicity of needs 86

Needs and goals vary among individuals 87

Arousal of motives 87

Physiological arousal 87

Emotional arousal 87

Cognitive arousal 87

Environmental arousal 88

Types and systems of needs 88

Hierarchy of needs 90

An evaluation of the needs hierarchy 92

A trio of needs 95

The measurement of motives 96

Motivational research 99

The development of motivational research 99

Qualitative research techniques used in motivational research 100

Motivational research today 101

Ethics and consumer motivation 102

Summary 104

Discussion questions 104

Exercises 105

Key terms 105

Notes 106

4 Personality and self-concept 108

What is personality? 110

The nature of personality 110

Theories of personality 111

Freudian theory 111

Neo-Freudian personality theory 114

Trait theory 115

Personality and consumer behaviour 118

Consumer innovativeness 118

Consumer dogmatism 119

Consumer social character 119

Need for uniqueness 120

Consumer susceptibility to interpersonal influence 120

Optimum stimulation level 121

Variety seeking 122

Cognitive personality factors 123

From fixated consumers to compulsive buying and consumption 128

Consumer ethnocentrism: responses to foreign-made products 130

Consumer self-concept 132

Self and self-images 132

One self or multiple selves? 132

The make-up of the self-image 132

The extended self 134

Altering the self 136

Brand personality 136

Summary 140

Discussion questions 141

Exercises 141

Key terms	141
Notes	142
5 Consumer perception	146
▷ Sensory dynamics of perception	148
Sensation	148
The absolute threshold	149
The differential threshold	151
▷ Subliminal perception	154
Evaluating the effectiveness of subliminal persuasion	155
▷ Elements of perception	156
Selective perception	157
Perceptual organisation	160
Perceptual interpretation	164
▷ Consumer imagery	166
Positioning and repositioning products and services	166
▷ Perceived price	173
Reference price	173
▷ Perceived quality	174
Perceived quality of products	175
Perceived quality of services	177
Price–quality relationship	180
Store image	182
Manufacturer’s image	185
Perceived risk	185
Perception of risk varies	186
How consumers handle risk	187
Implications for new products	188
▷ Ethics and consumer perception	188
Summary	190
Discussion questions	190
Exercises	191
Key terms	192
Notes	192
6 Consumer learning and involvement	198
▷ Consumer learning	200
The elements of consumer learning	200
▷ Behavioural learning theories	202
Classical conditioning	202
Marketing applications of classical conditioning	204
Instrumental conditioning	208
▷ Information processing and cognitive learning	213
Information processing	213
Involvement theory	219
▷ Outcomes and measures of consumer learning	228
Recognition and recall measures	229
Brand loyalty and brand equity	229
Summary	237
Discussion questions	238
Exercises	238
Key terms	239
Notes	239
7 Consumer attitudes—attitude development and change	244
▷ What are attitudes?	246
The attitude ‘object’	246
Attitudes are a learned predisposition	246
Attitudes have consistency	246
Attitudes occur within a situation	247
▷ Structural models of attitudes	247
Tricomponent attitude model	248
Multi-attribute attitude models	251
Theory of trying to consume	254
Attitude-towards-the-ad models	256
▷ Attitudes towards ads: using fear and humour	257
Consumer behaviour and fear	257
Consumer behaviour and humour	258
▷ Attitude formation	260
How attitudes are learned	260
Sources of influence on attitude formation	261
The impact of personality on attitude formation	262

► Strategies of attitude change	262
Changing the basic motivational function	262
Associating the product with an admired group or event	264
Resolving two conflicting attitudes	264
Altering components of the multi-attribute model	265
Changing beliefs about competitors' brands	267
The elaboration likelihood model (ELM)	267
► Behaviour can precede or follow attitude formation	268
Cognitive dissonance theory	268
Attribution theory	269
Summary	272
Discussion questions	273
Exercises	274
Key terms	274
Notes	275
Part 3 Consumers in their social and cultural settings	281
8 Social influences on consumer behaviour	282
► Communication via the media	284
The source as message initiator	284
Credibility	285
► Reference groups	288
What is a group?	288
What are reference groups?	289
► Informal sources and word-of-mouth	295
Strategic marketing applications of word-of-mouth	296
The word-of-mouth environment and e-WOM	296
► The message	301
Communication strategy	301
Persuasive message strategies	302
Overcoming barriers to communication	304
		Message framing	304
		One-sided versus two-sided messages	304
		Comparative advertising	304
		Order effects	305
		Repetition	305
		Emotional advertising appeals	306
		► The channel (medium)	309
		Mass media strategy	310
		► The receiver	311
		► Feedback	312
		Audience participation	314
		Summary	314
		Discussion questions	315
		Exercises	316
		Key terms	317
		Notes	318
		9 The family	322
		► Foundations of the family	324
		► Functions of the family	327
		Socialisation of family members	327
		Economic well-being	331
		Emotional support	331
		Provision of family lifestyle	331
		► The family life cycle	333
		Traditional family life cycle	334
		Stage I: young singles	334
		Stage II: young marrieds	334
		Stage III: parenthood	335
		Stage IV: post-parenthood	336
		Stage V: dissolution	336
		Modifications to the FLC model	336
		Consumption in non-traditional families	339
		► Family decision making	339
		Family roles	341
		Dynamics of husband–wife decision making	345
		Variations by stage in the decision-making process	347
		Children	348
		Summary	351

Discussion questions	351	Key terms	387
Exercises	352	Notes	387
Key terms	353
Notes	353
10 Social class and consumer behaviour	356	11 The influence of culture on consumer behaviour	390
▶ Is Australia a classless society?	358	▶ What is culture?	392
▶ What is social class?	358	The invisible hand of culture	393
Social class and social status	358	Culture satisfies needs	395
Social class categories	360	Culture is learned	396
▶ The measurement of social class	361	Culture is shared	401
Subjective measures	362	Culture is dynamic	402
Reputational measures	363	▶ The measurement of culture	403
Objective measures	363	Content analysis	403
▶ Lifestyle profiles of the social classes	372	Consumer fieldwork	404
▶ The emerging Chinese middle class	372	Value measurement survey instruments	405
▶ Social class mobility	375	▶ Australian core values	409
Signs of downward mobility	376	Ten core Australian values	411
▶ Geodemographic clustering	377	▶ American core values	414
▶ The affluent consumer	378	Eleven core American values	414
Media exposure of the affluent consumer	379	▶ Achievement and success	414
Segmenting the affluent market	380	Core values are not only an Australian or American phenomenon	420
▶ Middle-class consumers	380	Core values for services	420
Moving up to more 'near' luxuries	381	▶ Towards a shopping culture	422
Cashed-up bogans (CUBs)	381	▶ Consumer materialism and the impact of materialistic values	423
▶ The working class and other non-affluent consumers	382	Summary	425
▶ Selected consumer behaviour applications of class	382	Discussion questions	425
Clothing, fashion and shopping	382	Exercises	426
Home decoration	383	Key terms	426
Pursuit of leisure	383	Notes	426
Saving, spending and credit	384	12 Subcultural aspects of consumer behaviour	430
Social class and communication	385	▶ What is a subculture?	432
Summary	385	▶ Ethnic subcultures	433
Discussion questions	386	NESB cultures in Australia	433
Exercises	386	Asian-Australian consumers	437
		Sojourners	438
		Indigenous subcultures	438

▶ Religious subcultures	439
▶ Geographic and regional subcultures	440
▶ Racial subcultures	440
▶ Age subcultures	440
Generation Y market	443
Generation X market	444
The baby boomer market	445
The elderly consumer	447
▶ Gender as a subculture	449
Gender roles and consumer behaviour	449
Consumer products and gender roles	449
Women in paid employment	449
And what about men?	451
The gay market	451
▶ Subcultural interaction	451
Summary	452
Discussion questions	452
Exercises	452
Key terms	453
Notes	453
13 Cross-cultural consumer behaviour: An international perspective	456
▶ The imperative to be multinational	459
Acquiring exposure to other cultures	460
Country-of-origin effects	460
▶ Cross-cultural consumer analysis	462
Similarities and differences among people	462
The content and structure of value types	464
Time effects	465
The growing global middle class	466
Acculturation is a necessary marketing viewpoint	467
Distinctive characteristics of cross-cultural analysis	468
Applying research techniques	468
▶ Alternative multinational strategies: Global versus local	470
Favouring a world brand	470

Adaptive global marketing	470
Frameworks for assessing multinational strategies	472
Cross-cultural psychographic segmentation	473
Marketing mistakes: a failure to understand differences	475
Summary	477
Discussion questions	478
Exercises	478
Key terms	479
Note	479

Part 4 The decision-making process 483

14 Decision making	484
▶ What is a decision?	486
▶ Levels of consumer decision making	487
Extensive problem solving	487
Limited problem solving	487
Routinised-response behaviour	487
▶ Four views of consumer decision making	488
Economic model	488
Passive model	489
Cognitive model	489
Emotional model	490
▶ A model of consumer decision making	492
Input	492
Process	493
Output	510
▶ Consumer gifting behaviour	515
▶ Beyond the decision: Using and possessing	520
Products have special meanings and memories	520
▶ Relationship marketing	522
Summary	526
Discussion questions	527

Exercises	528
Key terms	528
Notes	528

15 Consumer influence and diffusion of innovations 534

▶ Diffusion of innovations	536
<hr/>
▶ The diffusion process	536
<hr/>
The innovation	537
The channels of communication	542
The social system	544
Time	544
▶ The adoption process	551
<hr/>
Stages in the adoption process	551
The adoption process and information sources	552
▶ A profile of the consumer innovator	553
<hr/>
Defining the consumer innovator	553
Interest in the product category	554
The innovator is an opinion leader	555
Personality traits	556
Perceived risk and venturesomeness	556
Purchase and consumption characteristics	558
Media habits	558
Social characteristics	558
Demographic characteristics	559
Are there generalised consumer innovators?	560
Use-innovativeness	560
Summary	561
Discussion questions	562
Exercises	562
Key terms	563
Notes	563

Part 5 Consumer behaviour and society 567

16 Public policy and consumer protection 568

▶ Ethics in marketing	571
<hr/>
The perils of precision targeting	573
▶ Manipulating consumers	576
<hr/>
Forced exposure to advertising	576
Tinkering with consumers' perceptions	576
Covert marketing	578
Socially undesirable representations	578
▶ The social responsibility of marketers	580
<hr/>
Consumer ethics	581
▶ The consumer movement	584
<hr/>
▶ Public policy and its link to consumer protection	585
<hr/>
▶ Consumer legislation and government	587
<hr/>
Consumer avenues to seek redress	590
Deregulation, corporatisation and privatisation	591
▶ Advertising and public policy	593
<hr/>
Deceptive advertising	593
Advertising standards and codes	594
Advertising to the child consumer	596
Sexism in advertising	596
Cigarette and alcohol advertising	596
Green marketing and advertising	598
Corrective advertising and consumer research	599
▶ Packaging and pricing issues	602
<hr/>

Packaging-to-price deception	602	▶ The nature of consumer attitudes	639
Nutritional labelling	602	▶ Facebook check-in: A new form of e-word-of-mouth	642
▶ Consumer education	604	▶ Responding to the growth in the lone-person household in Australia	646
▶ Consumer behaviour research priorities	606	▶ Coach reaches Asia's emerging middle class	650
Summary	608	▶ The China syndrome: Cultural misunderstandings can lead to marketing failures	653
Discussion questions	608	▶ IKEA: Crossing cultural boundaries to furnish the globe	657
Exercises	609	▶ The Australian dairy industry: Exploring market opportunities for dairy products in China	660
Key terms	610	▶ Building the buzz with Red Bull	662
Notes	610	▶ Mobile commerce and new interactive touch points to engage customers	665
Case Studies	615	▶ Speaking out on skin cancer	668
▶ iSnack 2.0: It looked good on paper ...	615	Glossary	672
▶ Moleskine: Integrating the techno and the retro	620	Index	693
▶ Tasmanian wine: Best served with a unique cultural experience	624
▶ You get me: Personality and self-concept in consumer behaviour – the case of Lush	629
▶ Zealong: The story of perfecting tea perceptions	633
▶ Our everyday idols	635		