

Contents

About the contributors	vii
Preface	x
Acknowledgements	xi

1 Introduction

Anne Grey and Beverley Clark

Introduction	1
Teachers as pedagogues	1
Teachers as members of a community of practice	3
Teachers as philosophers	4
Teachers as researchers	5
Teachers and children	6
About this book	8
Conclusion	9
Questions	9
References	9

2 A rapid history of early childhood education in Aotearoa New Zealand

Sue Stover

Introduction	10
Part 1: Creating a sector called 'early childhood education'	10
Part 2: The impulse to educate and care for children	12
Part 3: Creating an educational sector	17
Part 4: What do we want for children and their families?	19
Conclusion	20
Questions	20
Select bibliography	20

3 Te Tiriti o Waitangi and biculturalism in early childhood education

Huhana Forsyth and Gary Leaf

Introduction	23
Gary's story: Te kōhanga reo – early childhood education	24
Huhana's story: Biculturalism in mainstream early childhood education	30
Conclusion	33
Questions	35
Task	35
Select bibliography	35
Useful websites	36
Readings	36

4	Fa'alelegāpepe: a living assessment for aoga amata
	Fa'asaulala Tagoilelagi-Leota
	Introduction	37
	Conceptualising fa'alelegāpepe : a living assessment for aoga amata	38
	Some assessment tools in early childhood education	40
	Conclusion: a challenge	43
	Questions	44
	Glossary	44
	Select bibliography	45
5	Developmental theories in early childhood education
	Anne Grey
	Introduction	46
	Why are developmental theories important?	46
	Issues in human development	48
	Domains and themes of development	49
	Culture and context	49
	Western theories of development	50
	Indigenous theories of development	55
	Conclusion	56
	Questions	57
	Tasks	57
	Select bibliography	57
6	Embracing the complexity of a socio-cultural pedagogy: interpersonal relationships as a vehicle for learning
	Iris Duhn and Janita Crow
	Introduction	59
	Pedagogy in action: learning through interactions with people, places and things	60
	Developing a socio-cultural curriculum: the interconnecting social and cultural worlds of children	62
	Tension One: 'new' socio-cultural as a veneer over 'old' developmental, or socio-cultural developmental	63
	Tension Two: socio-cultural = multicultural	64
	Governing: learning to be normal	66
	Honouring Sam's voice?	66
	Honouring the child's voice	66
	Governing the self: learning to be different	68
	Conclusion	68
	Questions	69
	Select bibliography	70
7	Learning environments
	Desma Cornhill and Anne Grey
	Introduction	72
	Perspectives on learning environments	72
	The static environment	73
	The dynamic environment	74

Health and safety	74
Aesthetics in the environment	77
Papatūānuku and children's connections with nature	78
Whanaungatanga – Relationships	80
Rhythms and routines	82
Inclusive environments	82
Conclusion	83
Questions	83
Tasks	83
Select bibliography	84

8 Process, not perfection: the art of reflective practice

Mary-Liz Broadley and Tara J. Fagan

Introduction	85
What is reflective practice?	85
Why reflect?	86
Task 8.1	87
'How to' reflect	87
Models for reflection	88
Task 8.2	90
Progress not perfection pathway: 'I, We, and Us toolkit'	90
Reflection-in-practice: beginner reflector's model	90
Reflection-for-practice: we – I and early childhood education literature	92
Reflection-of-practice: us – community perspective	92
Options for review	94
Recommendations / Review	95
Task 8.3	95
Conclusion	95
Select bibliography	95

9 Infant pedagogy: learning how to learn

Jean Rockel

Introduction	97
An ethic of care	99
An infant specialisation	100
Parent narratives	105
A teacher's perspective	106
Conclusion	108
Questions	108
Tasks	108
Useful websites	109
Select bibliography	109

10 Toddlers: framing a curriculum towards autonomy

Vivienne Hogan, Nicola Chisnall and Yvonne Rongo Culbreath

Introduction	111
Reflection from Year 3 student on final practicum	112
Toddlers in early childhood education and care centres	112
Relationships	113

Care and education	114
Striving for autonomy	115
Well-being – mana atua, and belonging – mana whenua	118
Contribution – mana tangata	118
Communication – mana reo	119
Exploration – mana autūroa	121
Conclusion	121
Tasks	122
Questions	122
Select bibliography	122

11 Yesterday, today and tomorrow: cultivating dreams and possibilities with young children

Nicky de Lautour and Beverley Clark

Introduction	124
Play, thinking, excitement and relationships	125
What is play?	125
Free play: open-ended opportunities which underpin the context for play for young children	127
Curriculum: cultivating dreams and possibilities	129
Ecological theory and socio-cultural theory: underpinning curriculum theory	130
Early childhood curriculum for the young child: extending dreams and possibilities	131
Content knowledge	131
Transition to school	133
Conclusion	134
Questions	134
Tasks	134
Select bibliography	135

12 The philosophy of early childhood education

Andrew Gibbons

Introduction	136
What is philosophy?	137
Philosophy and Plato	138
Philosophy and will	140
Philosophy and society	140
Philosophy, science, theory, and practice	142
Philosophy, care and happiness	144
Conclusion	145
Questions	146
Task	146
Further reading	147
References	147

Index	149
-------	-----